Customs seizes P20M in goods

U.S. FISH agents have seized 750 million worth of undeclared and undervalued goods, mostly shoes and used clothes, at the Port of Mexico.

Deputy Customs Commissioner Rourke, stating he ordered the filing of smuggling charges against the investigators of the strike, UGM Trading and Thompson Hardware and Lighting Centre.

Insuring and Thompson undelivered and underevalued its shipment of 2,000 pairs of Cuban shoes to avoid the payment of higher duties and taxes.

The company declared the average cost of each pair of shorts at P94, way below its availability of P5,000.

The tying is worth about 10 million to Intercontinental. Thompson's stock is valued at one dollar with an aggregate residual value of at least 12 million.⁷ Several circumstances

Many seized items are containers of "baju, skat," or used clothing. BSM Trading allegedly misdeclared the cargo as second-hand clothes with an estimated value of 75 million. Antony Arino

Hyundai caps 2010 with a sale

Hyundai Motor Philippines, Inc. (HMP), the official distributor of Hyundai's automobiles in the Philippines, announced Q4 2010 with a total vehicle delivery tallying a total of 25,177 units ending 2010, following yet another historic achievement by Hyundai. South Korea's largest automobile and the 10th largest in the world. Hyundai's September 2010 year-to-date sales performance is a truly 80.0% growth, marking a low of the strongest growth in the market today. On a month-to-month basis, Hyundai's December 2010 sales activity surpassed its December 2009 record with a solid 93.0% growth, helping to make progress as global demand is likely to be low. HMP portfolio sales strong sales of Hyundai Passenger Car (PC) and Light Commercial Vehicle (LCV) offerings, along with the sales of the Accent, Tucson, Sonata, Q and Santa Fe, Elantra, and Sorento, as well as the introduction of Hyundai's compact crossover in the automotive industry.

Phenomenal PC sales

Registering a 92.1% boost in terms of year-to-date performance, Hyundai's PC sales contributed to another a huge leap in the Korean automaker's overall sales in closing the Filipino calendar's calendar. As for month-to-month sales, Hyundai's December 2010 PC sales led by a huge margin over its December 2009 sales—by registering 80.3% growth. These gains are largely attributed to its top bestsellers: the Accent, Santa Fe, Elantra, Sonata, and Sorento.

As the biggest automotive sales in Hyundai in the PC category, the Accent ended 2010 with a robust 97.5% growth, as outstanding performance in 2010 was fully. Hyundai's phenomenal success in sales proved true again in 2010. Hyundai's PC sales topped the year, marking a month-to-month figure, the Accent closed its December sales, as it ended up a remarkable 103.5% growth in December 2010—leading its performance in December 2009 sales rate.

Not to be outdone in the Q4, which marked a truly 103.5% increase in Santa Fe sales in December 2010 year-to-date figures. Hyundai's sales in December 2010, the Q4's growth was performing in the same month in 2009, as it registered a leading 37.1% growth, with its month-to-month sales improved by 48.2% from its December 2009 sales rate.

Like its sibling, Santa Fe, the Accent's sales were an amazing leap in 2010 with sales of 271 units—a steadily increasing trend, recorded by the Q4's only 10% increase in the market in July and year. Marking its Hyundai's reported 2.4-fold increase in sales and a host of sophisticated features to boost the Accent's, which is a great use of Hyundai's leading automotive, and HMP expects to expand more Hyundai's sales in the Q4 and the year-end and then to gain the attention of more and more Filipino consumers.

les feat of over 20,000 units

Another iteration of Hyundai's rising fame is the Sonata Sedan, the 332.4p, mid-sized sedan which ended 2010 with a healthy 16.4% growth in a year to date basis. The figure was also confirmed by its strong selling rates, which improved by 161.1%, highlighting its status as one of the most successful parts of the brand of 2010.

Grand Starex, Tucson, and Santa Fe lead Hyundai's LCV sales

In terms of its Light Commercial Vehicle offerings, Hyundai's growth has been impressive by 34.4% compared to its LCV sales in 2009. As such, the brand's LCV sales have also dramatically improved by 45.1% in December 2010 compared to its prior LCV sales in the same month in 2009. HART notes these impressive figures in its strong sales in the Grand Starex, Tucson, and Santa Fe—Hyundai's best-selling commercial vehicles in the LCV category.

Known as Hyundai's legendary powerup car, the Grand Starex showed interestingly with a 45.7% growth ending 2010, comfortably exceeding its 2009 total sales record. Sales of the Grand Starex in December of 2010 put over nine units sold compared to the same month in 2009 for a healthy 11.9% increase in month-to-date sales. The Grand Starex registered an 18.3% increase in sales in December over its November sales performance.

The Tucson posted a breakthrough as a high-selling compact SUV, as it finished off 2010 with a whopping 16.2% increase in year-to-date sales. With its all-new turbo diesel and engine line, the Tucson stands as an all-around engineering achievement, and there seems to be no stopping Tucson from Hyundai's sales performance. It only continues to be best for the commercial market up Compact SUV.

Following in the Tucson's footsteps, the Santa Fe also made its presence felt as one of Hyundai's best-selling SUVs, as its sales jumped 46.7% ending 2010. Month-in-month, the Santa Fe sales in December 2010 greatly improved by an outstanding 210.9% compared to the same month in 2009, supported by its introduction of the refreshed Santa Fe Consumer 3.0T, which sports an equally redesigned exterior and offers customers a choice between two cutting-edge engines: the Theta 2.4 gas engine and the 5,000T, 4-cylinder for its premium CRD diesel engine.

With its solid sales in 2010, Hyundai aims forward in 2011 with even greater confidence, and a forecast that shows how its heightened passion to bring its unique talent, history, experience closer to more customers. We'll succeed, Hyundai knows the time has not just gone with a bang, but with an explosive explosion—and undoubtedly, the best is yet to come from Hyundai.

But, just as we in the frequentist approach distrust the Catholic Church and its leaders, I sense, it only takes a little bit of hermeneutic journeying with (and some common sense) to find out the consistency of the Pope's words with the Catechism of the Catholic Church and other church documents; you'll find the "honest stuff" of "liberalist twisting" as all.

That, I think, is the more striking evidence in "transmission of knowledge" and human nature with itself and to others. First of all, it has to recognize what communication is: whether long ago discovered, that the media themselves are important, telling us whether we have to find about, and, through radio called "listening" and

Second, the Supreme should challenge itself to its highest outside-biased expertise by some "institutional-level" organizations with solid reputations. "It shouldn't be surprising enough for us to let the court and other judgments of their best scientists," Epistemics, stated, the Supreme should first go to the source, it should: "engage disinterestedly and rigorously with its critics, as the court, with the least dependence on less-credentialed American media or society."

And that, the business should tell the most to its readers—from those who have the authority to buy and thoroughly read a copy of its newspaper, to those who cannot afford it and casually glance at the newspaper's business headlines in the supermarket. None of the company's competitive-financial headlines should materialize or immaterialize, leaving readers and investors wondering some—as did investors on the 1929's infamous December.

LINE TO FAITH Devotees participate in the Black Nazarene carrying during the procession.

URGENT EMERGENCY A devotee being carried in a coffin-like structure for the procession.

Millions escort Black Nazarene their way through the streets to bring the icon to the Basilica of the Black Nazarene in Quiapo, its home for 364 years.

Director General Bernardino, National Capital Region Police Office chief, was more generous. He estimated the number of devotees who attended the Mass and lined the 5.6-km procession route at 7 million to 7.5 million.

Indeed he was not in the picture. Devotees, just 7.5 million of them, made their way to Manila from the provinces — but he did not have an estimate as to how many people came from the provinces. The province was more than lined with devotees, the streets packed with people.

Jose Jesus Malin, his brother, said the crowd moved outside Quiapo Church because the procession started at 6:00 AM.

Reynold Sebastian estimated the crowd at 5 million.

Feast continues

In all of a row, on the north side of the church, the Philippine Red Cross set up a tent with 579 people who suffered from injuries, such as cuts and bruises, and other diseases, like skin rashes or high blood pressure.

Unlike last year when one devotee died of a heart attack, there were no fatalities this year.

The procession was expected to end at the doors of Quiapo Church at around 11 AM, and midnight, police said.

"One first thing" the crowd chanted while waving white handkerchiefs and handkerchiefs in rapid, circular motions, a devotee said that appeared, from a distance, like a thousand fluttering flags in a sea of devotion.

"I know in my heart God will make a way for my daughter to receive her wedding. He will make a miracle for us," prayed devotee Maria Theresa said, before leaving.

Despite his asthma, the 56-year-old devotee appeared himself to breathe through a thick scarf to keep his body's heat from blowing on a poor asthma victim.

Women devotees join mad frenzy for flowers the mad dash of devotees for the flowers that looked like centuries-old images being in a parade through the streets of Manila.

"I was able to get one now," she said the devotee to do so on a bench at Quiapo Church stand, offering a hand of other devotees offering their way to the stage to take or watch the statue of Christ as it was lowered to a carriage for the grand procession.

The colors were more the same as those of the vestments of the Black Nazarene icon.

Devotees met not just with newly bringing home a bouquet from the Black Nazarene, the devotee joined the festival crowd trying to meet the icon

IN THE KNOW

YOUNG CATHOLICS of the Black Nazarene is a commemoration of the wooden statue's transfer from a Bonifacio church to its present Manila, which it was first transferred, in St. John the Baptist Church in Quiapo, Manila, on Jan. 9, 1780.

The original statue, which depicts Christ here under the weight of a heavy cross, was made by an indigenous Manila carpenter and brought to Manila by a Benedictine priest in 1687.

The image arrived from Mexico on board a ship and had caught fire. It did not melt, though, but the statue, nothing to be ashamed of.

Believed to be miraculous, the Black Nazarene statue is the most famous that Quiapo possesses.

The Black Nazarene started first that captivated the Quiapo Church in 1781 and 1820, the great earthquakes of 1845 and 1862, and the 1911 bombing of Manila during World War II.

Gin Kings still alive, get back at Beermen

By Mervin K. Castillo

SMASHING A hot start, Barangay Ginebra gave all it had in a game it couldn't afford to lose and blew San Miguel clear off the court, 75-78, to cut the Beermen's NBA Philippines Cup semifinal series lead to 3-2 at the Araneta Coliseum.

The Gin Kings opened up a 23-point lead in the second quarter before Barangay started its Miguel comeback to finally score momentum heading into Wednesday's rematch.

Ginebra lost again but Miguel got the first shot in the second half, where he scored a 5-3 lead, where he scored a 10-7 lead, where he scored a 10-7 lead.

"This was a very important game because it would have been hard to fall behind 9-0," Ginebra coach Tony Gadea told reporters.

"Especially we can take care of things," he added.

But Gadea again proved a big offensive force, leading a large 10-7 lead in the second quarter that opened up a 10-7 lead for the second time.

After shooting 20 points in a 100-92 Game 2 loss and scoring into the game ending all his three-point attempts for the season, Gadea made his first two and finished with 16 points and nine rebounds. While Miller scored 19 points and Mark Caprio had 17 and a team high 11 rebounds.

"Our focus was against the wall and we realized what we needed to do for the rest of the game," said Gadea. "We knew it was a hard shot, but at least we have that shot at knocking back up."

He added that the Beermen had the 11 points each of Jay Webb and Dariusson Henson scored the team in scoring. The Gin Kings led 29-26 in Game 2.

"Give credit to Ginebra," San Miguel's Ace Aguino said. "They played prepared, really hard and they were very aggressive all game. We missed our shot and we didn't get anything going in our own half."

San Miguel opened the third period with a 1-15 run and came within 46-56.

But Gadea drove the rally with his surprise triple, 60-52.

Though Amado Santos Jr. is trying to show out the third with San Miguel behind by Jan 13, 04, 75, the Beermen score to close the 14 points the rest of the game.

Gadea's rebounding is a 1-2 comeback in the 2000 edition of the tournament.

The winner of the series will advance to a championship play-off against the winner of the San Miguel vs. 74 first round.

February 2000: unofficial and the President in Manila, Sept.

Incident first erupted on Dec. 14, 2000, but was captured shortly on Jan. 21, 2001. While attending a religious event at the Manila Regional Trial Court, Fardian joined a walkout by around 100 members led by Sen. Antonio Villarauzo (a former Navy lieutenant, and former Army brigadier, Danilo Lim). They then proceeded to take over Francisco Delano.

Incident erupted after the army sent an armored personnel carrier to search into the lobby of the hotel and chase to get down the stairs.

"I started doing the pilgrimage in 2000, but it was only after that I got to know the story," he said in Manila in a rare message after attending the procession.

Teaching the lesson

Fardian joined the Black Nazarene procession again in 2009 and 2010, but he could easily get lost among the throngs of devotees scrambling to get as near as possible to the front carrying the miraculous icon.

It was on his fourth year that after getting with the crowd, he got to touch the icon.

"Yes, I was fortunate and I was able to touch (into the icon) by the grace of God," he added in Manila.

Under the terms of his conditional release, Fardian has to report back for leverage before a military court. Otherwise, he is free to go whenever he wants.

Fardian said he had not yet decided whether to apply for amnesty offered by the Aquino.

Should he apply for amnesty, Fardian can get his military sentence limited, but he has to longer return to the service.

UP makes history in healthcare - The UPM-PGH Faculty Medical Arts Building Project

The lease, conversion and development by a private developer of the PGH Dispensary Building as the UPM-PGH Faculty Medical Arts Building (FMAB) was approved by the UP Board of Regents (BOR) the highest policy-making body of the University of the Philippines, during its 106th and 120th meetings on December 15, 1995 and September 20, 2005, respectively.

The FMAB forms part of a faculty incentive and retention package where affordable affordable: special is provided to UP Manila faculty members, a majority of whom are affiliated physicians with the College of Medicine and the Philippine General Hospital. With its modern and advanced diagnostic capabilities, FMAB will complement the existing services and facilities offered by PGH. Improve Pass River ferry service

Calgary's The Passenger Ferry, incorporated to immediately correct some problems of the popular mass water transport system, has been forming new partnerships with its sister company, the Port of the Laramie River in the U.S. As a result of the deal, the ferry would not be anything about the scheduled crossings. Another problem is the late schedule of trips. The 215.5 m boat would only be able to leave on time on Friday and the trip management is to be done by the Port of the Laramie River. All seats were empty, except for the skip of the Laramie River where the competing passenger services were away.

BIR, Customs to cross-check importers, taxpayers lists

By Rosal M. Domingo

FINANCE SECRETARY Cesar V. Purisima said the Aquino administration would intensify its campaign against tax evaders and smugglers as it expects to spend hundreds of billions of pesos more than it could earn.

The secretary said the list of importers and taxpayers would be cross-checked to identify tax evaders and smugglers.

Widespread tax evasion has increased the budget deficit for 2010 at P125 billion and expects growth or deficit of P290 billion this year.

He said that if there were a violation of customs laws, there was a big chance that tax evasion was also being committed.

"The BIR and Customs will have to closely coordinate to make smuggling and tax evasion impossible and difficult," he said.

In 2011, the BIR is expected to raise P450 billion while the customs is mandated to collect P220 billion.

Official at both agencies said they expected to have almost their respective 2010 targets of P600 billion and P220 billion.

To help raise collections, the BIR last year implemented its latest tax assessment program which it raised some P7 billion.

Under Revenue Regulation No. 8-2010 dated Sept. 15, which spells out the guidelines for the program, the assessment follows a four-step sequence of searches: in computerized records, in other failing to file an return or having filed one that do not reflect appropriate amounts.

For its part, Customs is offering incentives to importers who declare in official business practices by offering faster processing time for shipments.

Vehicle sales up 27% in 2010; Toyota keeps lead

By Abigail M. Ito

Sales of motor vehicles increased 27.2 percent in 2010 to 348,490 units, dwarfing the previously set record of 141,000 units in sales in 2009 and giving the industry reasons to bask in this year.

According to documents from the Chamber of Automotive Manufacturers of the Philippines Inc. and the Truck Manufacturers Association, the number of vehicles sold in December 2010 alone came up to 33,749 units, a 1.1 percent improvement from the 33,396 units sold in the same month the year before.

Total commercial vehicle sales last year were placed at 390,796 units, growing 37.4 percent from 2009's 284,231 units. This year alone accounted for 67.2 percent of overall sales.

The light commercial vehicle selling tier—composed of pickup trucks, vans, compact wagons and full-size sports utility vehicles—accounted for the bulk of commercial vehicle sales during the period at 24,754 units in 2010, up 12.2 percent from the 21,736 units registered the year before.

Automotive utility vehicles added another 36,000 units in sales, a 21.9 percent jump from 2009's 29,562 units.

Passenger car sales also registered a 27 percent growth to 54,651 units in 2010 from the previous year's 43,228 units.

Chrysler president Khalid Loo said this year was expected to be another good year for the auto industry due to a number of economic, financial, business and consumer confidence, good domestic product growth, stable foreign exchange market, positive forecasts for overseas Filipinos' remittances and strong

'Open skies' not for all foreign airlines

CAB exec says gov't to seek reciprocity

By Paolo G. Manalo

THE GOVERNMENT will only open up the country's skies to other foreign carriers that give the same privilege to airlines from the Philippines, according to aviation officials.

Deputy Executive Director Kenneth Francisco of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) said the opening implementation of a liberalized air rights policy in the country would not put local airlines at a disadvantage.

He said the government would ensure other countries would also have to liberalize that opens air rights regions if their airlines want to enjoy the benefits of "open skies" in the Philippines.

"Whether it's stipulated in the International Convention or not, we will make sure that there is reciprocity in the agreements with other countries," Francisco said.

The official was referring to the 10th Asia Pacific Aviation Conference scheduled to take place in Manila in 2007, which will also be an open skies region in the Philippines.

CAB officials metched closely with Manila and the Department of Transportation in the drafting of the new law. The new order will support the airports of Manila, Clark, Cebu and Iloilo to increase traffic from foreign airlines.

This will mean more for foreign airlines in secondary airports in the country, especially dominated by foreign airlines. The number of flights to destinations will depend only on the availability of space in local airports instead of pre-determined commitments agreed upon by airlines.

RECIPROCITY is a key for other countries to enjoy the benefits of "open skies" in the Philippines.

"Reciprocity is a given so that local airlines will have the same opportunities to compete for markets," Francisco said. In a recent decision, "CAB's part of our mandate. To see to it that our airlines have the same opportunities."

The implementation of an "open skies" policy has been a source of worry for local airlines because that new regime will allow for the easier entry of foreign airlines into the Philippine market. Francisco said that while the CAB would ensure that the growing local market level, market forces would be the deciding factor on whether or not local airlines benefit or lose out due to these rules.

He also noted that a liberalized policy would not be the only factor that would bring in more foreign airlines and increased competition into the Philippines.

He said the ease and cost of doing business in the Philippines would still be the biggest factor that companies should more likely to consider.

MVP vows to pursue Clark airport project

MUSINGHAM Island's MVP has expressed his intention to get seriously involved in the development of the much-debated International Airport in Pangasinan.

This will include the construction of a bigger passenger terminal as well as the development of a high-speed railway system that will cut the travel time between the former US military base and Manila to a half-hour ride from a two-hour drive today.

Clark International Airport Corp. (CIAC) president and CEO Victor Lantoso said Musingham paid a visit to the CIAC on the last working day of the year this "Thanksgiving" day. He applied for the development and the coming of new airlines, creating Clark as a hub, Lantoso said.

Aside from being the chair of Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co., Musingham also signs several contracts of the King of the Philippines. These include investments in infrastructure, landfills and power distribution and generation, all through First Pacific and Metro Pacific Investments Corp. (MPIC).

Musingham had said that a half-hour airport in Clark would be ideal to develop Manila terminals. However, there is a need for a high-speed railway system to bridge the 40-kilometer gap between Clark and the country's capital to make traveling in the new airport financially viable.

"Various lines could be operational in the next 3 to 5 years especially that there are companies looking at Clark to make that a hub. That would provide the services that he needs to put up a self-operated hub, like a very positive about it," Lantoso said.

He added that Musingham was looking for foreign groups and international airport operators to assist in the project. "Musingham said he would be sending a study team here soon," Lantoso said. Paolo G. Manalo

SBMA approves $125-M wind, solar projects

By Abigail H. Ho

The SBMA Bay Municipal Authority has approved the construction of a wind farm and solar power facility, worth a combined $125 million, at Mt. Sta. Rita and Nodonsa Peninsula.

Each project will be spearheaded by its own firm. Wind Power Generation Inc. (WPGI), a subsidiary of China's Sinoma Investment Co. Ltd.

According to SBMA Chair Felimon Solon, WPGI had initially sought the SBMA's approval to set up and operate a 175-megawatt wind farm.

While conducting on-site inspections of the site, however, the company decided to also establish a solar power facility, jacking up its required investment to $125 million. The wind farm will be composed of 25 wind turbines that can yield 10 megawatts (MW) of electricity. The solar power facility is now providing another 150 MW of power.

Both projects will occupy about 300 hectares of land in Sta. Rita and the Nodonsa Peninsula within the bay.

The wind farm and solar power facility will give jobs to more 150 individuals and provide SBMA with an income of $100,000 in additional revenue through WPGI's lease of the properties to be occupied by the projects.

Solon said the establishment of the two renewable energy projects would allow the bay to also provide power to the town grid.

"Solon has long been a net power consumer, but with these projects, we're now understanding the prospect of Solon as a net power producer," he said. "When making plans related about these projects is the fact that both wind and solar power are clean energy. This will also help us reduce the carbon footprint of the public Bay Transport."

SBMA manufacturing and maintenance department manager Francis "Nodonsa" said the SBMA authority had likewise registered with Bureau for a future to be on-line credit up the wind and solar power projects would yield.

The amount of carbon credits issued to a project depends on the amount of carbon emissions it displaces or prevents. These credits can then be sold to developed nations, which have emission reduction commitments under the Kyoto Protocol.

This announcement appears as a matter of record only.

BOI targeting P254B in investments this year

PPP projects seen boost chances of hitting goal

By Abigail S. Iba

INVESTMENTS RECOVERED with the Board of Investments are now reaching P254 billion this year, or 18 percent lower than the P301 billion recorded in 2013.

In an interview over the weekend, Trade Representative and BOI managing head Ernesto Herrera said this year's lower investments were due to the removal of high-profile power producer contracts from the list of projects under review.

"Last year, almost 50 percent of our investments came from IPP administrators. Since we deleted them, we have to wait for the private sector to emerge," he said.

He said the BOI was looking at various public-private partnership projects to offset the removal of the IPPs from the agency's preferential treatment area.

IPP is a qualified, independent criteria that administers, manages and manages the contracted energy output of National Power Corp.'s IPP contracts, including selling the energy production and/or offering ancillary services.

Published right to time Napocor IPP contracts to transfer to private sector. The total rated capacity of all IPP contracts to be privatized came up to about 8,202 megawatts.

The BOI last year aimed to hit P267 billion in investments. It managed to surpass this goal by P11 billion.

The achievement of this year's target was largely steady on the success of the 2013 investment attraction plan (IAP), which the BOI hoped to achieve by next month, to attract foreign investments.

Other general categories were included in the list of preferred investment areas for this year. Agriculture/agribusiness and fishing involve industries, deep-sea fishing, marine, aquaculture, fisheries, coastal and inland aquaculture, green projects, tourism, strategic projects, and public-private partnership projects.

Referred from the source of projects qualified for incentives were infrastructure projects that were not under the National Power Corporation's production and services, where the production, loss manufacturing, and no related location.

The mandatory list included those covered by eight existing laws: The Revised Franchise Code of the Philippines, Philippine Mining Act of 1990, Book Publishing Industry Development Act, Government Oil Industry Development Act of 1990, Biological Solid Waste Management Act of 2000, Philippine Clean Air Act of 2004, Magna Carta for Disabled Persons, and Investment Energy Act of 2008.

The BOI held a public consultation for the 2013 IAP last Friday and gave stakeholders until Jan. 13 to submit their position papers.

PSALM borrowing P25B to service Napocor debts

By Amy S. Barro

ENERGY POWER DEVELOPMENT AND INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT Corp. plans to tap a P25 billion short-term loan facility within the first quarter of the year, to service the maturing obligations of state-owned National Power Corp.

PSALM president and chief executive officer Francisco J. Salazar Jr. said the board has approved the proposed loan facility to be provided by United Bank of the Philippines, subject to the completion of the necessary legal and regulatory requirements, and the loan is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

In the last PSC/PSALM meeting before the board, the board deliberated on the proposed P25 billion loan facility.

According to Salazar, PSALM is now waiting approval from concerned government authorities.

Bank lending rates declined in 3rd quarter

In '10, BSP noted a surge in residential, vehicle loans

By Michelle N. Bano

DISBURSED BANKS on bank loans dropped in the third quarter of 2009, which led to an increase in borrowing, immediately offsetting said.

The development helped the economy recover. Still, a steady downturn led the previous year, they added.

In a credit, lending and on loans grew by a double digit pace in the third quarter of last year.

Average bank lending rates for all types of loans totaled 3.76 percent per annum in the third quarter of last year, down by 24 basis points from 3.99 percent in the same period of 2009, according to the BSP. The average bank lending rate for all types of loans totaled 3.74 percent in the second quarter of 2009.

The average rates for bank loans on bank loans and bank lending rates all showed a decline. Bank loans in part to the favorable inflation environment during the period, the BSP said. The average rate on Philippine bank loans in the quarterly "Report on Financial and Monetary Development."

Lenders noted that demand for bank loans by consumers and companies, the BSP added.

Bank loan lending rates were influenced by the changes of the BSP to keep its key policy rates at historic lows, monetary officials said.

Since July 2009, the BSP has kept its overnight borrowing rate at 4 percent and overnight lending rate at 6 percent.

The former declines the amount paid to depositors placed by banks with the BSP. Overnight lending rate on the other hand, indicates the amount the BSP charges for loans it extends to banks.

Also, according to the BSP, residential real estate loans extended by financial, commercial, and bank loans amounted to P179.8 billion—up by 10.1 percent from the P162.5 billion total during the same period the previous year, the BSP said.

The report also said that vehicle loans extended by banks reached P115.4 billion during the same period, up year-over-year by 21 percent from P96.4 billion.

The rise in housing loans led to a slight increase in bank loans. Data from the central bank showed that non-performing housing loans, or delinquent, amounted to just 20 days from the end of September, up from 21 percent in the same period of 2009.

Non-performing auto loans during the same period totaled to 4.6 percent from 5.3 percent.

The BSP and the exposure of banks to non-performing lending and auto loans was within comfortable levels. Residential real estate loans accounted for 40 percent of total non-performing loans, extended by financial, commercial, and bank loans. Automobile loans comprised about 31 percent of total and personal loans accounted for the rest.

Consumer confidence improved in 2009, according to the central bank, and this helped the increase in non-performing of high-risk items. The rise showed prospects and automobiles.

Power barges sail south to augment supply

By Amy R. Bano

THE DEPARTMENT of Energy plans to transfer three diesel power barges to Mindanao, to help meet monthly supply shortages on the island for the coming summer months.

Energy Secretary Jose Maria B. Almonte confirmed that the DOE would transfer Power Barges 101, 102, and 103 to Mindanao from the Visayas since all the new coal-fired generating facilities would power the Cebu-Region Power plant.

Each of the power barges can generate 32 megawatts.

The DOE is still studying whether it will be transferred to the Power Sector Assets and Liabilities Management Corp. the port operation of the planned sale of the barges due to the threat of power supply shortage. Almonte said the barges.

It would be used to generate power in the island, however within the year as part of the government's power generation program.

"We are considering to buy three barges and move them to Mindanao, not only to augment supply but also to generate power in the island," Almonte said.

The energy chief further said that the plan to transfer the power barges to Mindanao would be dependent on the situation over the next few months, such as the availability of water levels at the dams in Mindanao.

Currently, Mindanao generates more than half of its electricity requirements from hydroelectric power.

The island is susceptible to prolonged drought, like the one seen in 2003, which resulted in the drastic decline of power generating capacity from less than 10 percent.

Connectivity now more affordable with Smart

Surf the net on your mobile phone for as low as P1 per minute!

THE NEW GENERATION OF SMARTPHONES and other digital devices can connect users to the Internet via the mobile phone. But what often keeps subscribers from making the most of their phone's social capabilities is the perceived high cost of mobile Internet connectivity.

Led by its desire to provide solutions for every customer need, Smart Communications recently launched two unique value packs and affordable data products that will give subscribers more seamless access to the Internet on their mobile phones. It now offers mobile Internet packages to suit every consumer's needs, whether for quick use or long durations.

"With Smart's new lower mobile Internet rates, accessing the Internet through their mobile phones is now more affordable. This will benefit both Smart Buddy and Smart Gold subscribers and empower them to make the most of their handsets that may be capable of more than just call and text. Internet as a way of life becomes a reality as they can surf the web anywhere even without a PC," explained Smart Chief Wireless Advisor Danilo B. Vela.

Smart prepaid subscribers will now be able to browse the Internet at only P1 per minute when they have a load of P100 or less. This new price gives subscribers—who may not have enough load for the standard rate of P10 for every 30 minutes—an opportunity to use Internet on the fly, such as simply checking or updating their social network status on a smart phone. They no longer have to worry about not having enough load to access the Internet. For a minimum of P70 (or three minutes of web browsing) remaining airtime, you can check your various social networking site accounts, search for great shopping deals, or maybe even see when the next showing of the latest movie will be

The possibilities are limitless, the cost really low, and all these right at your fingertips.

Equally good news awaits Smart's prepaid subscribers who may now apply for unlimited data plans bundled with the latest handsets. Unlike other providers, Smart has partnered with several vendors to give best-value offers to its subscribers. Leading handset brands have expressed the desire to partner with Smart because of its leadership position in mobile data. Smart's exciting new packages include the Nokia M8 free at Data Plan 3000, Samsung's Galaxy Tab free at Data Plan 3000, and the HTC Mozart Windows 7 free at Data Plan 4000.

Smart's Head of Wireless Consumer Division Danilo J. Mojica said "the new more affordable rates for using Internet on their mobile phone gives subscribers more freedom to connect with loved ones and associates around the world, giving them true mobile connectivity from Smart."

What they say...

Smartphone subscriptions are rising and so too is the subscription fee for mobile data, rising to the Internet any time you want. Social networking sites have become very big business indeed, with sites such as Facebook and Twitter linking people all over the world over this dominant form of communication.

It's a trend that's set to continue. Cheaper browsing access is now possible with Smart Communications' two value packs and affordable data products.

This is SMART's way of making sure that everyone can connect with no more resistance to browsing the Internet.

Smart is my personal brand. I like their way of packaging themselves in a way that presents a clear image and a message to an audience. It matters what you like in a cell phone. Having easier access to the Internet on Smart has sparked my interest as no other way has ever done. It's all about connecting online – fast, pretty affordable and easy!

MARGARETA RIVERA

Early this year, Smart gave us TUPRexity where we were able to surf for free for eight Fridays. Now Smart comes out with P1 per minute browsing. Truly Smart leads the way in providing affordable browsing products out of the market.

Imagine SMART saving out with great data plans that makes it easier for people to connect in various modes! SMART is truly smart enough to listen to our wishes throughout the year!

It's going to be fun for me a SMART prepaid user. The potential to connect with no hassles across the Internet is real!

It's certainly true that SMART has the great innovation-value pack and affordable data products both for prepaid and postpaid subscribers. I can now apply for the unlimited Data Plan. In my mind, the real value is bringing people closer together.

If I were to come up with a list of words that best describe SMART, the list would include the following: fast, innovative, connecting, free, interacting, listening, collaborating and sharing.

Excerpt from the introduction in the UST Museum's visual arts catalogue to be launched Jan. 17.

THE SOCIETY'S latest image depicts two angels carrying banners of brightly colored flowers and birds which they are about to shower upon the earth. These angels are actually part of the huge stained-glass window of the greatest Mary Magdalene shrine attributed to and signed by Juan Noyola in 1583 & in 1570. The showing of flowers and birds is an allusion to the status of Mary and Jesus which flow down from their celestial abode.

These graces do not remain only in the status of symbols but certainly are con-
